PHYSIOGNOMY IS INEXACT.

BROWN EYES AND WHISKERS SHOW LACK OF TRUTH.

If a Man Has Blue Eyes and Doesn't Carry His Head to the Side nor Wear Side Whiskers, He Usually Can Be Trusted.

"Physiognomy," said Bettina, "is an inexact science, but if a man has blue eyes and doesn't carry his head to the side nor wear side whiskers I find usually I can trust him."

"What is the objection to whiskers, aside from the fact that the wearer always looks like a state builder?" inquired.

"I never knew a man who wore whiskers who could tell the truth," replied my mother; "I don't know whether the wearers don't tell the truth because their wear side whiskers or whether they wear side whiskers because they don't want to tell the truth, but whiskers and a lack of veracity are certainly connecting in some way. Don't you agree with me?"

I replied that I had too little experience with whiskers of any sort to testify.

"Brown eyes are mighty pretty," said Bettina, with an assumption of wisdom I have ever seen been heard to own, exulting things with files of gold in them, but I don't like the sweet prefer my friends to have blue orbs. No, I'm not prejudiced against the shade. Plain blue of any sort will do, for they usually indicate sincerity and truthfulness of character."

"Of course, you know that all physiognomists of the sort you mention are making are nonsense," I put in.

"Not nonsense at all!" cried Bettina, indignantly. "I have studied up follow men for let these many years, and you are wrong. The benefits of my conclusions free of all cost, absolutely free," she repeated impressively, "and I am willing to bet a new hat she I would not trust him with my pocketbook unless I would if a great scratch on the Rue de Rivoli, and which must of the very best of the cloth. There is some crook in the character of the person who does not have that drawback."

"Sophy crook in his neck," I suggested further, "crooks in neck are very painful things and must be kept out of with a warm flannel."

But Bettina made no attention. Evidently she judged was one dear to her heart and she was unusually interested. "Don't believe anyone who tells you that you cannot trust a person who uses side whiskers," she said in the eye. The least trustworthy person I know that who goes about with it on one all the time they are talking with some which I name a number of my but perfectly honest acquaintances who do not long straight on one."

"You're a crank, Bettina," I chastised.

Distrust the woman whose eyes do not match her hair"—

"Or distrust her hair," I murmured.

Irish brunettes with black hair and blue eyes are common, of course, but I would not answer either for their tempers or their sincerity."

I wouldn't care for any more sincerity," I interjected.

You are a bachelor," said Bettina coldly. "When a woman has large, yellow teeth and a big mouth, don't object to her, for she is not in the soft of the earth. When a man has a like mouth and like teeth, look, it worthy of your faith."

I shan't do anything of the sort. It was a man with just such a mouth and teeth who persuaded me to subscribe for a magazine which goes out to every state in the union, and believe I was getting a bargain."

"Of course, there are exceptions to all these definite beliefs," Bettina admitted.

"I shouldn't object to that if there weren't more exceptions than other cases," I retorted.

"Married the quiet woman," went on Bettina. "Her of the very soft voice and gentle ways, who never seen seen how her and sometimes they go to their graves without discovering that she is not what she seems. Usually she's a vixen and an unbearable scold in place.

"And now," said Bettina suddenly, when she had said that she only said really fit to marry was one with a square chin, "and now tell me what you have discovered from consulting the faces of your friends with their characters."

"I have discovered," said I, after a moment's thought, "that it is the most foolish thing in the world to regard the face as an index of soul, or character, or disposition, or anything of the sort. The longer I live the more certain I am that you can tell more about a person's character from the color of his gloves than from the color of his eyes and a great deal more from the shape of his boots than from the shape of his nose.

"Our faces were given us to conceal our soul selves, and we use them admirably to that end. Physiognomy

The Saturday evening Whist club will meet Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fox.

Mrs. Eugene Ware, Sr., of Seventh street and Oakland avenue is recovering after a severe attack of grippe.

Miss Harriet Griswold, 611 Oakland avenue left Tuesday for Omaha, Kansas, where she will visit Mrs. and Gilbert for a few days.

Captain Swaney, gave a luncheon Wednesday in honor of Mrs. C. B. Vogel of St. Louis, and Mrs. W. H. Hooper of Kansas City, Missouri. The other decorations were Rose and lilies.

Mrs. George Little, Conrad and Thorpe, were returned Monday from Kansas, Ks., where she went to attend the wedding of Miss Lena Bilden to Mr. David Sanders which took place at nine thirty Wednesday, Feb 4th at the home of the bride's sister Mrs. Fred Gerdes in Kansas. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Lemkes. The bride's dress was a traveling suit of blue broadcloth. After an elaborate supper dinner at the home of the bride's sister Mrs. Gerdes Mr. and Mrs. Sanders left for Galveston where they will be at home at the Grand in this city.

Seventy-five relatives and friends witnessed the pretty wedding of Miss Pearl Gaskill to Mr. Ira Meredith Lawson which took place yesterday at four thirty o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Smith 212 Wabash avenue. The house was decorated with cut flowers and palms with green and white. Lobengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. Perry Smith preceded the entrance of the bridal party. Miss Mabel Lawson, sister of the groom was bridesmaid and Mr. Al Nelson, best man were followed by the bride and groom who took their places under a canopy of white and green, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M Chaney of the Grace Lutheran church. The bride's gown was satin bride satin, threadsize, trimmed with real lace. She carried bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Mabel Lawson, who wears her own white silk and carried pink carnations. Mr and Mrs. Lawson will make their home for a month or two in Jolie Bonn and later in Oklahoma City where Mrs. Lawson has a home. Sept. 3, Eighteenth St., Kansas City, Kansas. Mr. Lawson is chief clerk of the Commercial National Bank of this city, and has many friends who will be glad to hear of his marriage.

An entertainment of unusual beauty and elegance was the buffet luncheon and musicale given yesterday by Mrs. Albert A. Berger at her home, 610 N. Ninth St. in honor of Mrs. J. C. Penfield, New York, Miss Jackson which was served at one o'clock and plotted the water appeared at two o'clock in the afternoon. The long drawing room was transformed into a bower of beauty by the profusion of cut flowers and palms. Darling the afternoon a musical programme was rendered by Mrs. Maude Russell Waller, Mrs. W. H. Hooper, Mrs. Ralph Hopkins and Mrs. Jacob Loewenthal. The ability of these musicians is so well known here that any comment would be superfluous. Suffice to say that the programme was received with the most enthusiastic applause. Mrs. Penfield's gown was a handsome one of white satin, trimmed with rare lace and pearl ornaments. Mrs. Berger's gown was of white satin, trimmed with rare lace and white ostrich feathers. Mrs. Hopkins wore a handsome gown of white satin, trimmed with rare lace and pearl ornaments. Mrs. Waller

The question in Wisconsin is not that the people want rule and many cases will be poured into a primary in Wisconsin, as they were in Iowa. Under the Senator who has no other claim to that office than that he has bought it.

The gas companies of Kansas towns are fighting the bill requiring them to build reservoirs for a thirty days supply. They refuse to build duplicate pipe lines. They should do one or the other, and no more nonsense.

The justice of the principle embodied in the Constitution Albert bill, that insurance companies should not discriminate in their charges, should be evident. The fire companies have a rate fight in Kansas and their rates should be uniform and reasonable.

A way has been found by which Senator Kean can take the post of Secretary of State in the Taft cabinet without violating the Constitution. Congress will simply reduce the salary to $1 while there it was when it was raised to $12,000 and Mr. Knox will work for the reduced pay during his incumbency.

In the school department is an essay by Arthur Bullymore of Lowell school, entitled "How Wireless Telegrams are Sent Through Space." The article is worthy of a careful reading by adults, and will prove of especial interest, just now after the wonderful achievements of the system have set the world to studying.

Miss Florence Rockwell who plays at one of the theaters in this city next week, shot a paper wad out of a gun while playing at St. Francisco several years ago, and the burning paper set on fire the pompadour of the orchestra leader, who was Eugene H. Schmitz, afterwards mayor of the city, boodleman, grafter and convict. Miss Rockwell is pretty and smart, but she would have deserved better of Kansas City if she had known how to load a gun.

Street car transportation is indispensable to a city's development. How do the people of this city like the suggestion of Mayor Crittenden, that he city go into partnership with the Metropolitan on the Chicago plan which would allow that city to have a voice in the management of the lines, including the question of extensions and betterments. This city is entitled and should demand every consideration from the Metropolitan that is accorded to the most favored city.

Senator Bridy's paper, the Lawrence Journal, says: "There is no more reason why public printing in Kansas should be let to the lowest bidder than there is why the jobs of the legislators and other state and county positions should be put up for bids and given to the man who will do them the cheapest. The present legal price for public printing is fair and reasonable and should be allowed to stand. When there are so many flagrant frauds in other lines it is hard to see why such furore is always being raised about the legal rate for printing."

The firm commission of President Roosevelt has arrived in its report upon the necessity of good roads and the proper agricultural facilities for the rural districts. Kansas enjoys agricultural commission has covered the ground in its report to the governor which involves state help for weak districts. Gov. Stubbs has outlined a plan for good roads that will be worth tens of money compared with the present road building methods, and no more important question confronts the legislature. The suggestion that the work be supervised by a state road engineer is the most feasible solution of the question of how to get a uniform system.

Arthur H. Soden, formerly manager of the National Baseball League, has gotten into a hard scrape in Boston with another many wife. He has already given them one on a big scale, and now he is sued for $100,000 for alienating the affections of Mrs. Fred Eric L. Small. He is charged with having dragged both the husband and wife and then to have attacking the wife. When asked about it he said it was scandalous. Some people think The case is said to have its climax with that of Solomon White and Wm. H. Ames. The aggrieved husband, however, took the better course of seeking redress in the civil courts instead of taking the law into his own hands.

K. U. IS OEMOCRATIC.

The Alumni Association of Kansas University hereby feels the necessities of establishments that have been made since the contest arose between the Authorized College of Manhattan and the University regarding the professional training of the engineering department to Lawrence, and the Gazette is asking to correct the false opinion. It is gratifying to note that to respectable a body takes this view. The tendency toward exclusiveness is one of the weaknesses of human nature that too often shows itself among the college bred. Small and sub-low people, although possessed of good learning, fancy that a superior one is a mark of greatness. Such an impression of an institution especially by the people of Kansas would be the end of its usefulness. Above all, Kansas is democratic. Merit in every walk of life is the test, and there appears to be no higher profession of the standard establishing this opposition among the beneficiaries of this great institution of learning. Kansas wants practical, broad grained men. such as U. S. Senator Abraham Lincoln, and Wm. H. Taft of the United States. Philippine Islands, Cuba, Panama and the world at large. If there are any snobs at Lawrence or among the graduates, they should be given a picture of the Taft smile and taught to understand that the greatness lies in genuineness, is more often associated with simplicity of thought and manner than with eccentricity.

VICTORY FOR GOOD ROADS

On a free vote in the State Senate, good roads won by a vote of 15 to 15. And the friends of the Hodges road bonding bill relax. It will receive from 22 to 25 votes when it comes up for passage.

Senator Porter of Marion, is the fight against the bill, claiming that it would compel some parties to pay for a macadamized road because others in parties owning road material would such a road.

Senator Hodges explained that there was nothing compulsory on the people of any part of the State to build roads.

The friends of the bill were strengthened materially by the enthusiastic support given it by Senator Brady, of Lawrence, who said its enactment would be the most encouraging action of a rock road from Kansas City to Lawrence.

The bill provides that whenever a majority along the line of a road shall petition the county commissioners for a permanent road improvement the commissioners shall so improve such road. The petition of the land-holders are in order that the cost of the road to be improved, the character of the improvement of the land and the amount of annual improvement assessments, not exceeding ten. After the petition has been filed the commissioners shall have an accurate survey of the road made by the county surveyor or other competent engineers and a careful estimate shall be made of the cost of the improvement. To pay for the new road the commissioners shall issue special improvement bonds to bear 5 per cent or less.

The work is to be paid for in this manner: Three-quarters of the cost by the owners of the tracts of land in the benefit district and one-quarter by the county at large in which the improvement is made. Bridges and culverts are to be built by the county. The law does not apply to the construction of roads costing less than $1,000 a mile.

The society women of Philadelphia did not succeed in crushing the pow in the garden of Satan in the Hexagon shop opera house, although 60 of the ladies present, who have patronized the house patronized to have it suppressed. It remains to be seen what society will now do with America's Bonfire Impressario. If those who own fancy police for grand opera can succeed in suppressing a successful boycott, numerities will have an open field.

Women and Home.

The Confession of a Bachelor.... is a well known Topeka bachelor who has long a good many "affairs" written this disconcerting confession: "I find as I grow older that more and more people seek me out and bring matters before me they do not understand why I am content to remain a bachelor when there are so many nice girls in town. I do not know that I am content. Once a man has passed a certain age he has worked off as it were, the exuberance of youth, there isn't much to bring a bachelor. Taken as a whole it is a pretty monotonous job. I have always thought I should marry. In fact, I have always looked forward to marriage as to the real beginning of a man's life. And I am extremely fond of women. I have tried all of the experiments for passing time and making merry and none of them is to satisfactory as society with the other sex. I have never had any cynical ideas about marriage. I believe in the sanctity of marriage and am happier than they would have been had they remained single. The talk that there is almost every social event about lovelorn marriages and unhappiness and woes that are the result of each other is, I believe, pernicious and untrue. At any rate, I have never had any sympathy with it. But, considered from a purely personal standpoint, I am very fond of marriage. I am a peculiar man, and I am not sure that I would be fond enough of me to be content to live with me. I suppose I am fastidious to a fault. And I am extremely fond of women. I have tried all of the experiments for passing time and making merry and none of them is so

At the Theaters

WILLIS WOOD.

For one week beginning Sunday evening, Feb. 14th, Klaw & Erlanger's massive production of "The Round-Up," will be presented at the Willis Wood theater, Kansas City. The engagement of New York and the entire production will be seen here. This play was first produced in Chicago, where it ran all summer, and when it was taken to the New Amsterdam theater in New York for a limited engagement of four months. At the expiration of the time allotted at this famous playhouse, the interest in the extraordinary play was found so keen that it was moved to the Broadway theater, where it enjoyed a most prosperous run of three more months. Its large story, consisting mostly of the wonderful collection of western scenes and incidents, and the way in which it is done, combine in a marvelous entertainment that holds the attention of the auditor from the opening scene until the final curtain is reached.

"The Round-Up" is a play with the ingress of all outdoors. So naturally is it handled that it is almost as wholesome as a drenching mountain bath can be. With its glittering scenes before him the spectator loses sight of the fact that he is inside the four walls of a theater. The grand far west is magically transported to city doors and the blend is set tingling with all one ever sees and hears. The shows, the mountains and canyons have no irresistible fascination for every one, but there are comparatively few within those enough to enjoy Klaw and Erlanger's "The Round-Up" in the refreshing, vigorous atmosphere of life in the open is presented with startling fidelity and truth.

The dramatic incident of lastly pictured includes a thrilling hold-up on a cliff on the island set and the marvelously realistic battle scene and on ely detail of realism in the play which has recently been regarded on the history of stage entertainment. There will be an auxiliary organization of over 100 people, representing soldiers, scouts, "cow punchers," Mexican vaqueros, Arizona girls and Apache Indians. A feature in the conduct of the Indian fight on the island, the scene of which is to have been of Southern America.

The cast includes Charles Ashenden as "Slick," Hunter, the sheriff; Orson Colburn, W. C. Sandon, Joseph M. Lelsen, Elmer Grevelin, Walter Pennington, S. L. Richardson, James Ashara, Jacque Morris, Harold Hartell, John D. Pierson, "Texas" Cooper, Pelton Russell, Florence Rockwell, Minette Russell and Marie Tryon.

Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

THE SHUBERT.

One of the most important theatrical events of the year will take place at the Shubert, Thirtieth, Kansas City, next week, when beginning Sunday night, February 14th, Cecil Blickson will present for the first time in the section of the country, his highly successful production of William C. Gibbs's City Chap play, "The Warrens of Virginia." As offered in Kansas City, it will be exactly down to the smallest detail of stage construction, as it was seen at Mr. Belasco's theaters in New York for the consecutive nights, and Frank Keenan, whose performance of Jack Rowan, the gambler-guard in "The Girl of the Golden West," is still vividly remembered, will be seen in his original role of Gen. Orrel "Buck" Warren, supported by the other members of the Belasco Three Co. (N. Y.) company.

David Belasco is, without question, the prominent American producer and no presentation made in his name has ever visited Kansas City without creating the interest and admiration of all classes of playgoers. The engagements here of Blanche Bates and David Warfield were made memorable by the social brilliance as well as the skill of the auditorium which attended every performance and there is no doubt that "The Warrens of Virginia," with its magnificent production, and what is actually an "all star" cast, will duplicate the triumphs of these other notable offerings.

"The Warrens of Virginia" is quite unlike any other war play that has been produced on this or any other decade. Though the action is extremely and highly dramatic, it lacks those aspects to be the usual of the sensational which have disfigured the majority of dramatic efforts with their scenes laid on that time. Truly, the action is accomplished by the distant roar and rumble of battle and strife, but the effective situations are those in which the domestic phase of the struggle in it supported on the South, are shown.

Frank Keenan, one of the country's most distinguished character actors, has never given a role more congenial to his temperament and methods than that of General "Buck" Warren. In it he has scored a personal success fully and equal to that which came to him through his delineation of Jack Rowan. And he is supported by an organization that for general and individual excellence of ability has rarely been equaled. The company includes such well known players as William McVay, Christian Nemeta, Virgil Reed, Miss Charles G. Craig, Charles H. Rudeer and a dozen others of like prominence.

As a production it is doubtful if the play at Belasco himself ever did anything better than "The Warrens of Virginia."

Its scenes are laid in the beautiful Rappahannock Valley of Virginia, and the transporting the natural picturesqueness of this region to the stage, in a way that is impressive because of the illusion of artistically clothed, the Belasco genius was allowed to run riot.

"The Warrens of Virginia" will be seen at the Shubert theater all the week, and there will be matinees on Thursday and Saturday. In connection with this engagement it may be noted that the sale of prices is lower than has ever before been obtained during the presentation of a Belasco attraction, the prices of the best seats next week being $1.50 at night and for the Saturday matinee, while for the Thursday matinee, the best seats will be sold at $1. The regular box seat sale begins Thursday. Everything will be in the immediate vicinity of the theater, and in a marvelous entertainment that holds the attention of the auditor from the opening scene until the final curtain is reached.

"The Round-Up" is a play with the ingress of all outdoors. So naturally is it handled that it is almost as wholesome as a drenching mountain bath can be. RECEIPT THAT CURES WEAK MEN--FREE.

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have it Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vitality, weakened manhood, failing memory and loss of sexual power, which I will send free to any man who writes me asking for it. I have had this prescription in my possession for many years; it was given me by a physician in one of the largest German hospitals, but it is now entirely out of use in that country, as I have been told by physicians there that it is unnecessary. I have given this prescription to hundreds of weak men and have never known it to fail in a single instance. I am not a physician myself, but the prescription is so simple that any man can use it at home without the least inconvenience, as it is perfectly harmless. I think it is the most wonderful restorative prescription ever known, as it will quickly and surely restore lost vigor and manhood to weak, nervous, run-down men. I will gladly send a copy of this prescription, free of charge, in a plain, sealed envelope, to any man who writes me for it. This generous offer comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced in the interest of suffering humanity that a copy of this prescription in a plain envelope will be appreciated by many men who are broken down and discouraged with nervous failures. Write me today and I will send you a copy by return mail, in a plain, sealed envelope, free of charge.

Some good reasons why I did more business in 1908 than any previous year: First of all, I have handled the best quality of cut flowers and potted plants on the city. I have first made sure that the stock was O. K. and have found that when I was pleased my patrons were also pleased. I have bought my stock from the best growers at a price so I could sell it reasonable. My patrons have received my undivided personal attention. I guarantee all my work to be satisfactory or money refunded. You are cordially invited to call and help me enjoy the nice things I keep in stock. I thank you all for your past patronage and hope to have your support this year.

Chicago receipts: Wheat, 5 cars; corn, 32 cars; oats, 65 cars.

Kansas City receipts: Wheat, 35 cars; corn, 30 cars; oats, 13 cars.

Chicago Grain and Produce.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Wheat made a new high mark today yesterday's final years. The May drill sold up to $1.32 and closed trading with the shorts badly frightened. News was scarcity, didn't cut much figure to day, but when there were fresh bulls Liverpool closed higher. North west receipts small and cold wave damage reports coming in from the west. Export sales good even at the advance. Corn broke couldn't break the wheat to receive today.

Corn holding up finds by selling contrary during the wheat bulge. The May option followed the end closed quite below yesterday. The fair of futures were weaker. Receipts not to-day were liberally increased over expect were. No more Argentine shipment current. It is believed there is yesterday were exaggerated. Oats closed ¼ off.

Provisions were firm early and broke later. Pork closed up a split.

New York Stock Market.

New York, Feb. 11.—The bulls elected the stock market for the next week in their favor in Friday and Saturday sessions. Today's gains ings were insignificant and short lived. There were some short advances. L. & N. rose 2, super 2¾, and U. P. 1¾. Some other advances were moderate. Steel common market trade and but little news.

TO REMEMBER.

Any convention in life's game
Of any action any pastime
And would win a second prize
A low down trick of partner's ace,
A jump from strength or weakness,
Would not beat the game or stretch,
Or double, unless you're lucky
Lead a trump." —Julia Curtis Nelson.

A TWILIGHT CHAT WITH THE SPINSTER LADY.

By Beatrice Fairfax.

The Spinster Lady had just returned from a theatre party, dinner and a few of her girl friends had called to welcome her home and drink tea with her.

"Have you had a good time?" said a pretty, fair-haired girl, humoring herself and her tea cup on the arm of the Spinster Lady's chair.

"Indeed I have. I have played every minute, and have not even thought of work from the moment I left until I got home."

"I wish I were like that," said a careworn brunette girl, "but I can't carry the burden of my work home with me every night, and make room for anything else. It's full."

"My work suffers from it?" with a wondering glance at the head. I believe when it's at work that I am thinking and planning about all the time?"

"Good Lord, I have been glancing at my watch now and then
